Guiyang City, Guizhou Province, People's Republic of China.

Guiyang, a capital city with more than 400 years of history in Guizhou Province, is an important ecological leisure tourism city and center in South-Western China. Guizhou is an inland mountainous province with a beautiful environment and pleasant climate. The province has a total population of the province of 35 million with 38% consisting of 17 minority ethnic groups including the Miao, Yi, Dong, Buyei, and Sui. The famous scenic spots include the Huangguoshu Waterfalls, one of the largest waterfalls in the world, the Zhijing Underground Karst Caves with a cavity size of 5 million m<sup>3</sup>, and the Xijiang Qianhu Miao Village, where the culture of the Miao ethnic group has been preserved.

Guizhou has areas which are severely affected by the coal-burning type of endemic fluorosis in which 15 million people live. Ten million of its residents have dental fluorosis and 800,000 have skeletal fluorosis. This endemic fluorosis has now been efficiently controlled by systemic and comprehensive treatment.

PROGRAMME AND CALL FOR PAPERS

The conference theme is, Eliminating the toxic effects and enhancing the beneficial effects of fluoride: from basic research to clinical treatment and prevention. Papers can be presented as oral presentations or as poster communications (maximum size: 90×120 cm). For oral presentations, at least one of the authors must be registered to attend the conference. Most of the oral presentations will be 15 minutes in duration including 3 minutes discussion but some selected presentations will be for 20 minutes including the discussion.

Abstracts are invited on all aspects of fluoride research including research on humans, animals, and plants, and others, such as:

- Epidemiology of fluorosis
- Biochemical and physiological effects of fluoride
- Toxic effects and pathological changes caused by fluoride
- Anti-caries effects of fluoride
- Molecular mechanisms of fluorosis
- Clinic treatment and prevention of fluorosis
- Improving analytical methods for fluoride contents, defluorination and related parameters

The deadline for abstract submission is June 15, 2018.
